A CURE FOR SNORING.

A GREAT OPPORTUNITY FOR A SOBER PHILANTHROPIST.

A Terrible and at Present Incurable Disease That Breaks Up Homes and Destroys Lifelong Friendships-A Cure For This Would Be a Roon.

Several years ago, when that best of table companions, Don Piatt, was alive, we had arranged to have a little dinner together at an up town cafe. I was on time, but Piatt was late. When he did come, he looked grave and said in the low and well modulated voice so memorable:

"I am sorry, but the simple truth is 1 discover that I am afflicted with an ailment that will not yield to treatmentone indeed for which 6,000 years of medical science have not been able to find a cure.

Though always on my guard for a joke, the sadly solemn face of my friend absolved him this time, and with all the sympathy I could throw into my words I exclaimed:

"Why, my dear Piatt, don't you believe it! What is this malady?" "Alas, old age! I set out to walk here.

it was too much of an undertaking." The timeliness of this reference to the infirmities of age is accentuated by several important cases in court that have depended upon the incurability of snor-This vexatious affliction to which the human family is heir has increased in this country with alarming rapidity since the advent of la grippe. Its changed character is recognized by progressive physicians, and the definitions found in the dictionaries are now admitted to be quite wide of the mark. Webster intimates clearly, by tracing the etymology of the word, that the nose is the important organ in producing the noise during

This belief must have been general in the last generation, for we all know that a clothespin was the remedy best thought of in practice. That treatment was no more severe than cupping and far more direct in application. But during the past five or six years, or since the French form of influenza fastened upon us, there has been a marked and alarming increase in the number of people addicted to snoring. It is a peculiarity of this malady that the sufferers are not confined to those attacked. Like the delirium tremens, the cornet habit and other obnoxious forms of nervous unrest, snoring awakens an antagonism in the human breast that mere medicine is powerless to subdue.

Those who fail to agree with me as to the gravity, the seriousness or the timeliness of these remarks are requested to communicate by mail, and they will be made acquainted with a case in point that will amply convince them. An acquaintance living on West End avenue is now suffering from the most thoroughly developed case of snoring that has appealed to medical science in recent times. His life up to the past year has been exemplary, but it is the plain, unvarnished truth to say that he now looks upon himself as a victim to the inadequacy of medical science to reach his case. His wife has left him, taking the children with her, and while it is unlikely that the case in Wisconsin will be taken as a precedent for procuring a divorce there can be no doubt that the couple are irrevocably separated. That husband was deeply attached to his wife. He took the best of medical advice. He even visited that city of physicians, Philadelphia, in the hope of restoration to a normal method of sleeping.

His medical experience was extensive. He began with anodyne and ended with a serious contemplation of deadly strychnine. He tried oxides and bromides, nerve foods and antifats, lactics and laxatives, iodides and chlorides, acids and alkalis, oatmeal and cornmeal. Alternating with these he took beer, baths and blisters. Knowing that belladonna made large the pupils of the eyes, he searched for a medicine that would have the effect of a mydratic upon the nostrils. Then he went to Dr. Curtis and had the cartilage of his nose removed. Somebody told him about the Prince of Wales being cured of insomnia by the use of a hop pillow, and he tried thatwithout effect. His case was incurable! He grew desperate. He resorted to atrophine, camphine, benzine-bombazine! At this stage his wife left him, and one by one the servants in the house gave no-

Thus was a household wrecked because the head of it snored.

We all regard with serious apprehen sion the threatened approach of epidemics from the old world, and we remember that from the same old world was brought the sad, sad infirmity of snoring-a gift that we could have done without and would have been happier had they kept at home.

Now that a recognition of the deplorable seriousness of snoring is forthcoming I would soberly suggest that some philanthropist offer a prize for the spe cific that will antagonize and destroy this sunderer of homes and destroyer of happiness. The remedy must be real and the cure effected permanent.

Snoring must be removed from the category of incurable afflictions.-Julius Chambers in New York Recorder.

A certain clerk in a Detroit establishment, who has money of his own, but holds a position for the looks of the thing, recently became impressed by the idea that he was working too hard, and he went to the manager about it. "I came to see you," he said to that po-

A Midnight Confidence.

I am a Jersey 'skeeter and I revel by the sea.

A-biting dudes and common folk in manner bold and free; Today I'm full of English blood; tomorrow every vein May hold the bluest, richest gore that ever came from Spain.

Another day I'm like as not to sing "Die Wacht am Rhein," From having bit a German when perchance I came to dine; And there are times when, reeling on my happy daily ways, take a nip that's Paris-bred, and hum the "Marseillaise."

Ofttimes I am a Russian from my wing-tip to my bill; Ofttimes I hold the richest blood you'll find on Murray hill.

Sometimes I take a mixture, but I find it does not pay.
Unless I wish to suffer pain for many an anxious day.

For I have found that when I've bit a Briton and a Celt, I'm pretty sure to suffer in the region of my belt; when a Frenchman I have nipped, of Germans I keep free; not want a battlefield down in the midst of me.

From which I think 'tis evident, while seeming free from care, I have to keep a watchful eye upon my bill of fare;
And that is why I stick by you, my friend, the livelong night;
I'm dieting—and if I may, I'll have another bite.

-John Kendrick Bangs in Harper's Weekly.
